Reflections
'66 & '67

Produced by

The Journalism Class

Foreword

Life today moves at such a rapid pace that before we know it, our childhood is just a collection of past memories and our future suddenly becomes the present. We now stand at the threshold of our lives. Since we pass this phase of our lives only once, we strive to cherish the achievements of these all too short years.

The walls of Dunbar have stored within them a desire to attain knowledge and a zeal to develop a clean social life.

Since the journalism staff aims to reflect all parts of this, our last year at Dunbar, we have selected "Reflections" as the theme of the 1967 WILDCAT.

J. Martin Jacquet

Fort Worth Public Schools

DUNBAR JUNIOR-SENIOR HIGH SCHOOL

5100 WILLIE STREET

FORT WORTH, TEXAS 76105

As we approach the close of the 1966-1967 school year, we are drawing nearer the reality of having the present Dunbar Jr. Senior High School divided into two separate schools. We hope that the provisions that are being made for separate and better facilities will serve as incentives for the promotion of higher ideals and improved citizenship for the boys and girls of the school.

The Principal and faculty of the Dunbar Junior-Senior High School wish to extend thanks to you, parents and patrons for the patience and interest that you have given during the growing period of the school.

We hope that the division of the school will promote a dual interest; and, that your continued interest, cooperation and support will serve as guiding factors in helping us to build in our students the type of Citizens in which our Society can be justly proud.

J. Martin Jacquet - Principal

One of the most influential times in our lives is our high school days. These days develop into years and all too soon this habitual period ends.

Every year has its own texture, its own pace which remains a very personal part of each member of its senior class.

The annual staff is faced with the difficulty of composing a story of your years at Dunbar within the limitation of words and pictures. Capturing the texture of things done, felt, and past is our greatest concern.

Knowing not the effect of the interior of this annual on your lives, we strive to do justice to your year as we hold it in quote and photo.

"Reflections", the theme used throughout our annual, builds up to the climax of maturity of mind and body, that places us in the classification of seniors. Imprinting in our minds the last official act of graduation so that it will be reflected in our memories forever.

Camille Carter
Co-Editor

The pace and complexity of today's world are on an increase. Almost before we realize it, the safety and security of high school days are abolished. We move uncertainly then, toward another phase of life.

The senior year in high school should hold a special significance for us. It is symbolic of that part of our lives which can be compared with no other.

The Class of '67 should feel this more resolutely than any other senior class of Dunbar. We are the last class to emerge from Dunbar Jr.-Sr. High School. Realizing this, we feel a sense of superiority over all previous senior classes.

This superior status warrants many responsibilities. Because we wish to instill this sense of responsibility within the seniors of '67, we have selected "Reflections" as the theme of this yearbook.

We hope that as we reflect periodically over the pages of this yearbook, we will be reminded of our responsibilities to our school, our class, and ourselves.

Reflections "67" Features the Mod All-American

In the dull common place occurrences of every day living one fact stands out as a complete unique experiences: Lye Soap. Lye refreshes you best; it keeps you cool, calm and dry hour after hour.

This picture shows a user of our product after just one rinsing. As you can see, Lye soap bleaches as it whitens. Just one cup does the work equaled to one box of brand X. The aroma emitted leaves absolutely nothing to be desired. You never have to be told how nice you look because your appearance is obvious and you are assured your breath will last for hours. If you go where the action is like our All-American pictured here, you'll like lye soap. It deep cleans to remove hidden dirt which can cause blemishes. After seven days of our soap beauty plan you feel so light that you could carry a number of items easily. You want to get out and do things.

Historian

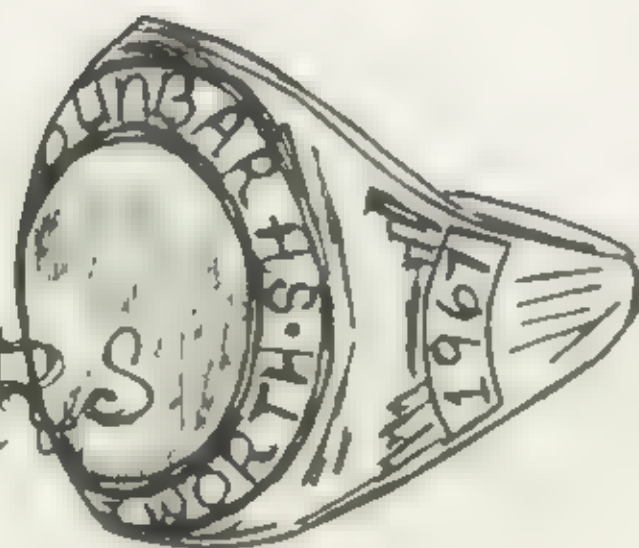

Great men and women have died in the knowledge that progress is often won only by making the ultimate sacrifice. They have dedicated their lives to the fulfillment of progress--such progress that is not innovating in one's self but continuously advancing society.

Therefore, as seniors of today and the great Americans of the immediate future, we are challenged...challenged by progress and society. However, we can meet this challenge, for as Dunbar students we have received the necessary knowledge and endurance to succeed.

Not this one!!!!

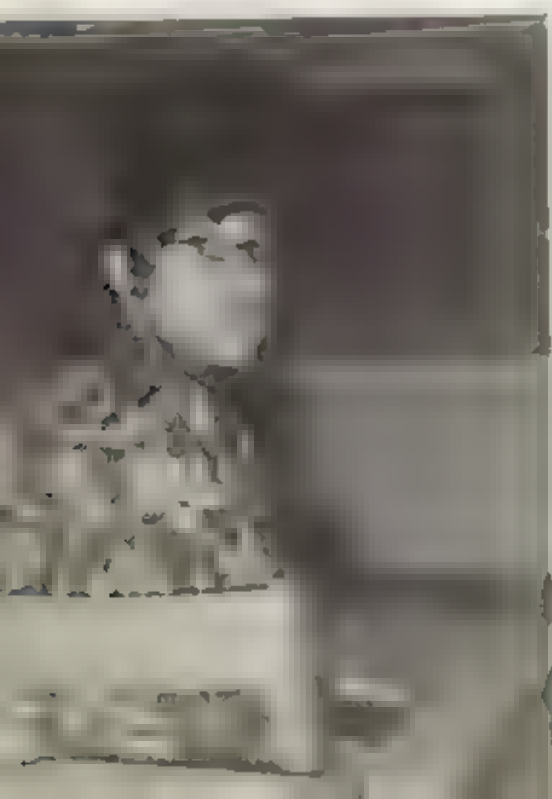

We're gay and carefree.

BUT boys let's look at...

...No comment

AH ...Nature!!!

I wonder??...

Is this the chapel? Now don't forget to say "I do". The next time "I'll drive."

They went thattaway. Now get out and get'em.

I told you we should have turned right at the U. N.

I told you this was powdered marshmallows.

Who says the Jolly Green Giant is a giant that jolly?

"Never again shall the senior's graduate from these beloved walls."

In this pictorial journal we have strived to capture lasting memories of the past activities.

This is indeed a time for senior awakening, not just for the graduates, but for the entire senior high division.

As we, the senior division, leave these walls that have sheltered us so long, it brings a tear to our eyes, a prayer to our lips, and a desire to aim high in the future.

The journalism class sincerely hopes that each event relived on these pages has brought, and will continue to bring to you, the fondest memories of your stay at Dunbar.

 Librarian, for accompanying the SENIOR CLASS FAVORITES away from the school campus
 after school hours.

Acknowledgement

The Journalism Department kindly acknowledges Mr. T.L. Ausbrooks of the Social Studies Department for his interest in the publications of the Danbar High School. Mr.
 Ausbrooks gives freely of his time to the students of the Journalism Class in an effort to promote their work. It is highly inspiring to see one individual who is interested in the total school program.
